

World Alive!

Bursting Boundaries!

Bursting Brilliance!

A Social & Global Brilliance Conference
London 21-22 Feb 2011

People Power is taking shape everywhere in a new trend called SOCIAL & GLOBAL BRILLIANCE.

Real people all over the world are turning their yearning to make a difference into highly creative projects, visions and businesses that create brilliant societies and a super connected world.

Some of the projects we've come across include turning plastic back into oil, interest free microfinance loans, unleashing the brilliance of children excluded from school, a solar roadway prototype, children teaching children to grow gardens and feed the homeless, businesses that care and do good things for the world, and building schools in countries where education is a luxury few can afford.

They're creating the world anew, bringing it alive in brand new ways. Join us, The Centre for Social Brilliance and the Visionary Network, to celebrate and inspire social and global brilliance at our 'World Alive ... Bursting Boundaries! Bursting Brilliance! Conference - 21st - 22nd February 2011 in London along with some amazing speakers & participants from the world of business, charities, community organisations and more.

Gib Bulloch, Executive Director, ADP, Accenture, UK

Gib Bulloch is the Founder and Executive Director of Accenture Development Partnerships (ADP), a ring-fenced not-for-profit consulting group within Accenture, whose clients include many of the major international NGOs and development agencies. ADP's main focus is bringing affordable business and technology expertise to the international development sector and promoting private sector engagement in sustainable development. Launched in 2003, ADP's "self-sustaining" business model has been used as an example of corporate best practice in social innovation in a number of publications including WhatIf's book "Everyday Legends" highlighting the stories of 20 leading social entrepreneurs and by John Elkington in "The Social Intrapreneur: A Field Guide for Corporate Changemakers". www.accenture.com/adp

Euan Smith, Senior Vice President at Sky Deutschland, Germany

Euan has 20+ years of manufacturing, supply chain & customer service experience in blue-chip companies and has led teams of up to 3000 people. He's recently changed roles and is now working at Board level in Germany. Euan is a strong believer in harnessing the power, awareness and sense of purpose that is created when corporate people experience community projects and using this to help them develop strong leadership and team working skills. www.sky.com/thebiggerpicture

Andy Dalby-Welsh, Programme Director at Cricket for Change, UK

2009 winner of a Pride of Britain Award, Andy is the highly inspirational and successful Programme Director at Cricket for Change. Having lost his sight at age 20, Andy has gone from strength to strength, working with young disabled people of all ages and backgrounds, showing them how they too can create the life they want to lead. www.cricketforchange.org

Genevieve Boast, Managing Director at Emergency Happiness, UK

Genevieve has spent the last 10 years working for BSkyB in the fields of continuous improvement, community investment and leadership development. She heads up Emergency Happiness, a new and innovative social business that creates unique development programmes to inspire and develop business and social leaders of the future. www.emergencyhappiness.com

Rachel Sinha, Sustainability Manager, Institute of Chartered Accountants, UK

Rachel works in the sustainability think tank of ICAEW, is one of four co-conveners of The Finance Innovation Lab, an open environment in which people can come together to explore, innovate and evolve the financial system, so that it sustains people and planet.

Rachel has nine years of business experience working for six years at the intersection between sustainability and business in the UK and Sydney, Australia. Prior to ICAEW she worked at Futerra Sustainability communications, where she led projects for clients including L'Oreal and the London Development Agency. She speaks and facilitates regularly at events recently including the Social Finance Network, Chinese Delegation from the Ministry of Finance, and to ICAEW members in Cyprus, Poland.

Rachel has a BA in Psychology, an MA in Marketing, specialised in Corporate Social Responsibility for which she won the Brian Francis Memorial Award and presented her findings at various conferences including the Academy of Marketing and European Marketing Academy in 2007. www.icaew.com

Jennifer Morgan, Project Lead, WWF-UK & The Finance Innovation Lab

Jen is a Sustainability Advisor at WWF-UK. She has been inspired by the natural world from a young age and is committed to enabling a future where people live in harmony with nature.

Jen has worked for WWF for the past six years and initiated the Finance Lab in 2008. Jen continues to lead WWF's innovation work in finance and is a key driver in the delivery of this transformational change programme. Jen believes that the financial system has an influential role to play in the consumption and production of natural resources and that change will come about through bringing diverse groups together in ways that stimulate creativity, build social capital and shift worldviews.

Prior to working at WWF, Jen held various roles with international businesses that focussed on enabling innovation, strategic relationships and organisational vision. Jen is a Board Member of FairPensions, a Sustainability Council advisor to Earth Capital Partners and a contributor to the 'Sustain Our Nation' programme. She holds a BBA in International Business and an MSc in Responsibility and Business Practice. www.wwf-uk.org

He is also passionate about music education & founded the Rock Academy in 2008 that now holds an annual charity Battle of the School Bands competition involving 150 secondary schools.

Apart from music education, Pete has embraced web technology and uses it for positive social impact. He works with ambitious people who share similar business and social ethics with a driven socially responsible ethic.

Pete is a social entrepreneur and enjoys projects that are risky, fun and have an educational focus because passing on knowledge to help others is very important to him. www.petedoyle.com, www.readingrockacademy.com

Martin Richards, Founder of the Global Coach Conference, Sweden

Martin Richards has a grand vision that the powerful openness and honesty that comes from the future-oriented, coaching-approach to life will swiftly spread around the world, enabling humankind to radically evolve itself into its next manifestation.

Martin created the GCC, the Global Coach Conference, in 2009 to spend the day in conversation with other coaches around the world reaching India, Europe, South Africa and the USA talking about their views of coaching. One year later, the idea had grown. The GCC2010 was a collaborative effort with 50 speakers and hosts who ran the conference together for seven days with over 400 participants connecting by phone and internet from China and Australia to Europe and the United States, and back again. www.globalcoachconference.com

Patrice van de Walle, Founder of Web Video Consultancy, Belgium

Patrice van de Walle has over 20 years of experience in television, digital media and consulting. He began his career at Sony Pictures Entertainment as a business development executive. With Sony he helped launch the German music channel VIVA, managed the Indian satellite channel SET and set up a UK production company that produced the hit TV sitcom "The Upper Hand".

As a Media Consultant, Patrice was involved in the launch the North American Sports Network, NASN, and led the development of an Internet sports rights marketplace. He also developed the business plan for a global network of television channels based around Hello! Magazine.

His recent work revolves around video, the Internet and social media, for example the use of Facebook, Twitter and a web site to create a Positive News Agency at www.PositiveTV.tv.

He holds an MBA in Marketing from The Wharton School of Business, an MA in International Studies, an MS in Regional Science and a Bachelors of Arts in Economics, all from the University of Pennsylvania. He is bilingual in French and English.

Ashley Dobbs, Founder of Green Cities Foundation, UK

From the beginning of his business career Ashley has undertaken ambitious projects. At 22 he raised £0.5 million to convert Flanesford Priory, a 14th century monastery, ancient monument and grade one listed building into 17 holiday cottages. This won a Civic Trust Award and the judges commented: "This is a spectacular rescue seemingly against all odds. A long fight and two public enquiries later the sensitive and imaginative conversion is a tribute to its owner."

He went on to undertake developments in Europe and the United States.

In parallel with these commercial activities, Ashley was instrumental in introducing teleworking telecentres to the UK and was founding Chairman of the Telework Association. Since the Association's foundation the number of teleworkers has grown in the UK from two thousand to two million and the number of telecentres has grown from zero to two thousand. Ashley has blended philanthropic interests with his commercial business acumen to create developments known as televillages. Green Cities will be a natural progression from these projects which are groundbreaking in their environmental approach.

Julia Miles, Enterprise Academy, UK

Inspiring a new way of thinking, being and doing in the learning processes for our young people is Julia's passion. Not the current "one-size-fits-all" system but a new and different way. One that 'sees' all young people for the truly magnificent beings they are with wondrous gifts to share, one that creates a thirst for knowledge not a dread of rote, that is fun not manipulative, that is creative not suffocating, that is freeing not constricting, one that enables the full potential to be released and young people to be given the chance to shine and believe in themselves. For those young people to take their wisdom and self knowledge to tomorrow's world, to 'know' and 'see' others, to create a brilliant future for all, one in which everyone can shine. A part of her work is now at the academy with these young people who have been excluded from mainstream education 'because they don't fit in'. Julia is an ambassador for new thought, a champion of potential and a visionary.

Darren Male, Director, Enterprise Academy, UK

Darren has been in education for 15 years and has always felt that students have been constrained and misunderstood and 'knew' there needed to be something different that prepared young people for the world we live in. He was given an opportunity 4 years ago to grow a seed that had been in his mind for many years. Free from some of the shackles from our current educational system he have started to develop some of these new concepts into an educational centre that embraces a new way of thinking.

He is now a full time manager of the Enterprise Academy which engages with students between the ages of 14 to 16 who have for what ever reason become disillusioned with mainstream education. Four years on and the Enterprise Academy continues to prosper and grow. The journey that he is embarking on is a long one but he feels that he is on the right road. Darren loves his work and finds it incredibly rewarding to see young people who have struggled in the 'old world' prosper and grow in the 'new world'. He continues to grow and is open to new ideas that will support both this academy and education in general. www.enterprise-academy.org

Bart van der Vliet, Trustee, Street Child of Sierra Leone, UK

Based in London since 1998 and with extensive 'hands on' experience in the 4 continents of America, Asia, Africa and Europe, Bart van der Vliet has an unparalleled track record in leading global change projects. In his consulting and coaching work he supports (business) leaders from international organisations to achieve personal, social and organisational transformation.

Through his work in charitable organisations, Bart champions his belief in responsible leadership. In 2010, this resulted in the building of five schools in the Tambakha region of Sierra Leone, the poorest region of one of the poorest countries in the world. He is a trustee of Street Child of Sierra Leone, the UK charity whose mission provides a future for the street children of Sierra Leone. www.street-child.co.uk

Amy Carter-James, CEO, Thin Cats Thinking, UK

Amy is fast becoming recognised as an international leader in the field of "responsible tourism", successfully combining commercial tourism with philanthropy. She has owned, developed and operated a multi-award winning resort, Guludo Beach Lodge (guludo.com) in Mozambique, which has helped to lift tens of thousands of people out of poverty. She is the founder and trustee of Nema Foundation, working with communities to address local issues and promote sustainable development in Africa.

More recently she has co-founded a CR hospitality consultancy, Thin Cats Thinking, which assists hotels and resorts around the world to work more efficiently with local communities and maximise their positive impact in a commercially viable way. Some of the international awards Amy has been recognised in include; Young Social Entrepreneur of the Year, Women in Ethical Business, Responsible Tourism Awards, Conde Nast Traveler World Saver Awards and Tourism for Tomorrow. www.thincats.org

Jackie Thoms, Co-Creator of Centre for Social Brilliance, UK

Jackie's vision is to explode brilliance in the world by creating a global network of people that know their own brilliance and can see other peoples brilliance to create a massive impact on how people view themselves and the world. One key aim is to move people from seeing the problem in a situation to seeing the potential and having the knowing, confidence and sense of self to take action and steps to work with the brilliance they see.

After over 10 years working in Marketing roles in telecoms, internet and software companies, Jackie trained as an Executive Coach working for companies including T-Mobile, Heinz, Tesco, Allianz, BT and Accenture. Jackie loves to work with individuals, groups and teams at all levels of organisations, to bring more conscious awareness of their huge potential and have a stronger, clearer connection to their passion and brilliance.

Jackie has an MA in Psychology, a Masters in Marketing and is a leading brilliance and visionary coach from the Coaches Training Institute and The Visionary Network. www.socialbrilliance.org

Dorothy West, Co-Creator of the Visionary Network, USA

Dorothy is a passionate co-creator of the Visionary Network. As an evolutionary coach and visionary leader, she coaches, facilitates and trains the movers and shakers co-creating our new reality. Dorothy's attention has been captured by the fireworks that occur when a group of creators with a shared passion come together. Connecting those creators with each other and instigating the collaborative creations that are waiting to happen utilizes her coaching and leadership skills. Visionary Educators and The Visionary Network-USA are two such networks.

She also enjoys excavating genius, witnessing brilliance and instigating collaboration with individual clients and small groups such as businesses and NGO's. Her varied background includes decades of entrepreneurial success, coach training with three of the most well-known and respected training programs, and many years of teaching and working with groups. www.thecoachesleap.com.

Manisha Dahad, Founder of Centre for Social Brilliance, UK

With a unique ability of visioning the new untapped potential in individuals and society, Manisha has always worked in innovative ways within organisations and communities bringing new social and business ideas to fruition. From engaging in large transformational programmes as a Management Consultant with IBM and working with telecom companies like O2, T-Mobile and Cable & Wireless, to designing and delivering social leadership programmes for corporate organisations such as Kroll and Colliers CRE in partnership with Save the Children and other charities, she weaves a core thread of social consciousness in each initiative.

A visionary, speaker, coach and documentary film-maker who wants to connect brilliant potential around the world, Manisha recently created a short documentary highlighting the spirit and sparks of magnificence in two young children living in the slum communities of Mumbai in India.
